DISTRICT ODD FELLOWS MEET

Flem Sampson and Judge Corn Are Speakers at Session Held at Phoenix Hotel

PLAN MEMORIAL SERVICE

Addresses by former Gov. Flem D. Sampson, of Barbourville, deputy grand master of Kentucky Odd Fellows, and County Judge Charles T. Corn, of Harrodsburg, past grand master, featured the meeting of the Central District I. O. O. F. Association in the ballroom of the Phoenix hotel last night.

Mr. Sampson took for his subject "The Future of Odd Fellowship," and Judge Corn spoke on "Government and Citizenship." The former governor declared that the future of Odd Fellowship depended on the interest taken by individual Odd Fellows in the work of their lodge and the order, and Judge Corn asserted that the stability and effectiveness of government depends and has always depended in the character of citizenship and that the principles of Odd Fellowship tend to make good citizens.

The district meeting was welcomed to Lexington in an address by Eldon S. Dummit, Lexington lawyer, Legion leader and prominent Odd Fellow, who was especially felicitous in his welcome to the Rebekahs, who were guests of the Odd Fellows in the district meeting.

Responses wree made by Mrs. Claudia Anderson, president of the district Rebekahs; Miss Katherine Hansdell, of Eminence, state president of the Rebekahs, and Mrs. George I. Briehl, of Newport.

Other features of the program were banjo and mandolin numbers by Jack Claus and Oscar Ritter; quartet numbers by Jesse Mountjoy, Dawes Thompson, Harlowe Dean, Jr., and Robert Dean, Henry Clay High school students; tap dancing by Marjorie Yellman, Mary Papanla and Frances Ann Papanla, pupils of the Holt Sisters school of dancing; a duet by Mrs. Mary Childers and Mrs. Henrietta Veal, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Nora Clifford, and a one-act play "The Sign," given by seniors of Picadoma High school.

Previous to the open meeting reports from the lodges in the district weer read, District President Frank G. Trimble presiding. These showed renewed interest in Odd Fellowship not only by former members but by new recruits to the membership.

The district memorial committee met in a private dining room of the Phoenix previous to the meeting and, after organizing by electing E. B. Bailey, of Merrick lodge No. 31, chairman, and J. Sherman Porter, of Lexington lodge No. 281, secretary, voted to hold the annual district memorial in Lexington at a date to be selected by the local committee, which will be composed of representatives of each of the Lexington lodges.

George G. Wilson chairman of the committee on religious and educational services at the Odd Fellows Orphans' home, made a report of the services so far held since the last quarterly meeting of the association in December.

Treasurer A. Reed Juett, of Richmond, was authorized to pay over to Grand Secretary William Davless an amount sufficient to continue the work of the boys' band at the home until the next meeting of the association, if it should be found that such assistance is necessary.

The Rev. J. L. Clark, of Shelbyville, grand warden, offered the invocation and pronounced the benediction, the Rev. V. B. Filson, of Calvary Baptist church, who was to have given the benediction, being unable to be present.

About four hundred men and women enjoyed the program and all Central Kentucky lodges, as well as the state bodies of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs, were represented.

Many Innovations in Styles for Men and Women Will Be Shown In Lexington's Spring Style Week

Lexington merchants will show many innovations in men and women's clothes during Spring Style Week which opens Monday and continues throughout the week. Stores throughout the city's shopping section will participate in the event, which has become an annual affair in Lexington.

Engraved invitations to attend the event by visiting the various stores have been sent out by many merchants. These invitations have been placed in packages of merchandise purchased at the store and have been inclosed with statements mailed out during the past few days, according to Sig Bing, chairman of the general retail committee of the Lexington Board of Commerce. A committee from this organization has been appointed to make the general arrangements for the week of exhibition of the newest styles in men's, women's and children's clothes.

One of the features of the spring styles in women's clothes will be the "swagger suit." This creation has won instant approval among the women who have seen it and will undoubtedly receive the favor of women of the Blue Grass, Mr. Bing said. Other features in women's garments will be solid colors and prints in dresses, and one-piece designs in jacket styles. Ed Meyer is chairman of the women's wear committee of the board's committee and is at present in New York studying the newest styles for spring, in connection with the week of special showing in Lexington.

Hats for women this spring will include a "Mae West" sailor, Breton sailors and off-the-face turbans. Other models will be pedaline straws, rough, bankok and ball bundal straws.

Men's styles will show one of the most radical departures from the "usual models of nonenity" that has been witnesed in recent years, Collis Ringo, chairman of the men's wear committee said last night.

All kinds of belted-back and Norfolk style coats will be displayed and the sport motif will be predominate, it is predicted. Dark trousers with light coats will be featured and the gabardine suits, which have been so popular in Florida this winter, will be given special emphasis.

Many of the plans for the gala week are still in process of formulation, it was stated last night by various members of the committee, and will be announced within the next two days.

Other members of the committee on arrangements include James M. Todd, chairman of the department stores committee; Ed Meyer, chairman of the women's wear committee, and J. Henry Baynham, chairman of the shoe dealers committee.

JURY CONVICTS LLOYD ASBURY

Five-Year Prison Term Is Imposed on Jackson County Man; George Powell Was Victim

OTHER CASES ARE HEARD

[Special to The Herald]

RICHMOND, Ky., March 1—Lloyd Asbury, charged with the slaying of George Powell, of Rockcastle county, near Big Hill, was convicted on a charge of manslaughter at a speedy trial in Madison circuit court here today. His penalty was fixed by the jury at five years in the state reformatory at Frankfort.

Jointly indicted with Asbury were Russell Asbury, Hiram Ranney, Mitchell Robinson and Arthur Robinson, all of McKee, Jackson county. When the defense moved for separate trials, the commonwealth, represented by Commonwealth Attorney G. Murray Smith and County Attorney O. W. Hisle, elected to try Asbury first.

Testimony introduced at the trial today indicated that the fatal wounding of Powell occurred after Asbury's truck had forced Powell's truck from the road. Asbury pulled the Powell truck back on the road and immediately thereafter the shooting occurred.

A jury in Madison circuit court yesterday decided that W. C. Bennett, president of the defunct Citizens National Bank of Richmond was not liable on one of a number of notes on which he had been sued by Joseph P. Chenault, receiver for the bank. The other items had been decided by Judge W. Rodes Shackelford and the particular question decided by the jury was whether the firm of Bennett and J. M. Evans had actually benefitted from the $3,000 which Evans borrowed from the bank on June 30, 1931.

The court already had found for the plaintiff on other notes totaling $8,446.78, and indicated a decision for the plaintiff on another note for $650 which was signed W. C. Bennett II, by W. C. B. This note is amply secured by collateral.

The question of whether the mortgage given by Bennett to his sister and to the Madison-Southern National Bank & Trust Company should be set aside and held null and void is a question in equity and has not been passed on yet. The receiver for the Citizens Bank is asking that they be set aside.

In criminal cases tried yesterday, S. W. Newman was acquitted of a charge of forgery and Reed Williams was acquitted of a charge of carrying a concealed weapon. Edgar Settles was fined $100 for driving while drunk. Vardy Wallace was given five years for robbing William Rhodus of $21. Roy Lambert was given four years for safe breaking and Carmen Allen was given one year for shop breaking.

W. G. Blount, O. G. Estes and John W. Roberts represented the Richmond lodge at the Central district meeting held in the Phoenix hotel ballroom Thursday night. Reed Juett, treasurer of the association, was in attendance. Delegates from the Million Rebekahs were Mrs. Edgar Burgess, Mrs. Ben Bennett and Mrs. George Schuler.

CONWAY CASSELL, LOST IN MOUNTAINS, FOUND

Kenbridge, Va., Resident Left Lexington Last Sunday by Motor

Conway Cassell, of Kenbridge, Va., who left Lexington last Sunday night to help Deputy Sheriff A. S. Whitlow, of Kenbridge, and U. M. Knoth, deputy constable of Fayette county, return an escaped insane man to the Eastern State Asylum, Staunton, Va., was missing two days in the mountains of West Virginia and was not found until Wednesday afternoon, it was reported last night by Mr. Knoth upon his return to Lexington.

The four men left Lexington Sunday morning in an automobile bound for Staunton. Road conditions were so bad that the group decided that Mr. Whitlow and Mr. Knoth would continue on to Staunton with the prisoner by train out of Ashland, Ky. Mr. Cassell was to follow with the automobile, and in the event that the roads were blocked he was to call or wire to that effect to Staunton.

Monday night no word had been received in Staunton from Mr. Cassell and, as he was known not to be an expert driver, Mr. Whitlow feared that he might have become lost or had met with an accident due to the unfavorable weather conditions.

Mr. Knoth left Staunton that night and reached Ashland by train on Tuesday morning, at which time he received a wire from Mr. Whitlow stating he had not then heard from Cassell and asking Knoth to try to locate Cassell and wire Mr. Whitlow at Kenbridge.

After tracing all possible clues from the time Mr. Cassell left Ashland, Mr. Knoth had no word of him by the time he had reached Huntington, W. Va. Mr. Knoth wired Mr. Whitlow that he would get in touch with him again from Charleston.

City and state officials of both Kentucky and West Virginia cooperated without success with Mr. Knoth in his effort to learn something of Mr. Cassell's whereabouts. At 3 o'clock Wednesday Mr. Knoth received a wire from Mr. Whitlow saying that Mr. Cassell had arrived home safely. Mr. Knoth was at the Kenova hotel in Charleston when he received the wire.

After he had notified the authorities there that the man was safe, Mr. Knoth returned to Lexington.

An Associated Press dispatch from Charleston, which appeared in The Herald Thursday morning, stated erroneously that Casseli was from Lexington and had returned here.

DR. WYNEKOOP'S DAUGHTER HEARD IN MURDER TRIAL

CHICAGO, March 1 (AP)—With lips trembling from a storm of pent-up emotion, Catherine Wynekoop, physician-daughter of Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop, charged with the murder of her daughter-in-law, Rheta, testified in her mother's defense today that she had heard Rheta make a threat which indicated she contemplated suicide.

Avid spectators, who again today stormed the courtroom, sat tensely silent as the 25-year-old physician told for the first time the sequence of dramatic incidents after comely Rheta's body was found drenched in blood on the operating table in the gloomy Westside home of her mother.

The aged defendant probably will take the stand tomorrow. Throughout her daughter's testimony, she sat nervously toying with a water glass, her pallid face constantly lifted to watch her daughter.

U. K. Athletic Council Approves Baseball

Gives Permission to Students to Play Intercollegiate Games Again

Baseball as an intercollegiate sport will be returned to the program of athletics at the University of Kentucky as a result of action taken yesterday by the athletic council.

A petition signed by approximately 40 students of the university, each of whom announced his willingness and desire to report for the team, was presented to the athletic council.

Commenting on the action of the council, Dr. W. D. Funkhouser, chairman, said:

"We could not refuse these boys. They don't have a Pullman complex like most of our athletes. They said they would be satisfied with just permission to play, but, of course, we will do more than that for them."

Dr. Funkhouser then said that the boys had made arrangements to practice and play their games at the Epping ball park and that they would travel in their own automobiles if necessary for out of town engagements.

Baseball was discontinued several years ago at the university and the baseball diamond turned into a football practice field.

Ice and Snow Cause Garrard Rural Carriers to Seek New Ways of Delivery

[Special to The Herald]

LANCASTER, Ky., March 1.—Wallace Gover, rural carrier, who has been carrying mail on the Crab Orchard route for more than 26 years, using a small one-horse wagon on his daily trips, discarded his horse when the roads recently became choked with snow and ice and hitched four mules to his mail wagon and, by this means, succeeded in delivering the mail daily without any interruption.

Other Garrard carriers, who ordinarily use cars to deliver mail have, in many instances, abandoned use of these during the past week on account of the snow, and had to do some horseback riding and walking to reach some of the boxes in the more remote sections of the county.

'Tammany,' New York City Hall Feline, Upsets Dignity of Aldermanic Meeting When He Objects to Flowery Oratory

NEW YORK, March 1 (AP) — An unseemly interest on the part of the city hall cat in a scholarly denunciation of Mayor LaGuardia today swept the cloak of dignity from the board of aldermen.

The cat, which answers to the name of "Tammany" and is in appearance a small edition of the Tammany tiger, was snoozing on a chair near the president's dais.

Alderman Edward Curley was on the floor, warming up to the attack. He quoted from the classics; he recited lines from the works of four distinguished poets.

Then the alderman raised his voice, and began using such terms as "oligarchy" and "dictator."

Tammany sat bolt upright, gazed at Alderman Curley, and walked over to his desk.

"How do you do?" said Alderman Curley, waving the cat to be seated.

Tammany sat down, cocked his head and listened intently, but the rest of Curley's speech was drowned in laughter.

From the chair came an effort to restore order.

"The sergeant at arms," said President Bernard S. Deutsch, "had better escort the silent member to the back of the room."

Almost in a body the aldermen cried a protest, and Alderman Walter R. Hart moved that the privilege of the floor be extended to the city hall cat.

The motion was carried and Alderman Curley went on with his speech, but all the fire was gone from his words, and he soon subsided.

"I'm mighty glad," he said later, "that I interested the city hall cat. I hope I can hypnotize the mayor too."

Trade Boards in All Sections of State Urged to Request Amendment To Senate Bill No. 273 by Wilder

Secretaries, presidents and directors of chambers of commerce in all sections of the state were requested to ask their legislators to support an amendment to include cities of the second class in senate bill 273 and house bill 535 which are acts enabling first class cities of the state to partake of federal slum clearance funds, by Ed Wilder, secretary of the Lexington Board of Commerce, at the semi-annual meeting of the Kentucky Commercial Executives Association yesterday at Frankfort.

The executives assembled unanimously approved the suggestion, Mr. Wilder said last night upon his return from Frankfort, and at the close of the session many of them went to the capitol and so requested their legislators.

Mr. Wilder said that Senator Stanley Mayer, of Louisville, who is sponsoring the bill, has agreed to offer the amendment to the bill. If the bill is passed Lexington would be enabled to apply for such funds, Mr. Wilder said. The funds would be used to clear existing slums and erect upon their sites houses of single family units, or apartments. These would be rented from the government by the families, who might purchase them in some instances.

Resolutions asking that Kentucky be kept under its southern classification in both the federal and state NRA codes were passed by the executives and will be submitted to code authorities.

The gathering also voted to have the president appoint an executive committee of 10 representatives from 10 different parts of the state appointed.

Officers elected at yesterday's meeting were H. B. Skinner, secretary of the Newport Commercial and Civic Association, president, and Everett J. Beers, executive secretary of the Winchester Chamber of Commerce, secretary.

Majority of Fiscal Court Members Endorsed His Appointments, Davis Says in Answer to Karr's Criticism

In answer to charges made yesterday by Magistrate E. Matt Karr that he was increasing the salary cost of the road department without consulting the fiscal court, County Road Engineer R. W. Davis said last night that a majority of the members of the court had endorsed all appointments of employes made by him.

Mr. Davis pointed out that the appointments to which Magistrate Karr referred were, with one exception, foremen who had been employed to supervise road work being conducted by CWA workers and that their salaries were no higher than salaries paid similar employes in former years.

Answering the charge made by Mr. Karr that the payroll had been increased to such an extent that no funds would be left with which to purchase materials under the appropriation of the 1934 budget, Mr. Davis said that since he went into office the highest weekly payroll had been only $170. This unusually low payroll was due to the fact that only CWA labor has been used on the roads since he took office, Mr. Davis said.

The county road engineer declared that the names of the road foreman and the mechanic, which he was charged with having employed without consulting members of the fiscal court, had been submitted to a majority of the members of the court and that they had approved the employment of these men.

Charges that two of these men were employed by the city at the time he gave them jobs with the county are unfounded, Mr. Davis said. He pointed out that the men had at one time been employed by the city, but had been released when he offered them jobs with the county.

Under the law the county road engineer has the right to hire and fire employes for the road department, it was pointed out.

The charges against Mr. Davis were made by Magistrate Karr yesterday morning at a meeting of the fiscal court at the time a vote was to be taken on the February payroll. At that time Mr. Karr said he would approve the salary claims of the road department employes for February because he believed the men had rendered service during the month, but that he did not intend to continue to give his approval unless the road committee of the court was consulted.

Included in the business transacted by the fiscal court yesterday was the approval of monthly claims as follows: General fund, $6,061.64; turnpike fund, $1,747.99; tuberculosis fund, $3,333.33; charity appropriations, $6,316.30.

The court approved the appointment of Harry D. Kremer as assistant to County Attorney Samuel Cole to assist in all delinquent tax cases. He is to received one-half of the fees allowed the county attorney in such cases.

An appropriation of $8 per month for a telephone in the transient home of the Lexington Transient Service Bureau also was voted by the court.

Reports of the county auditor and the law library for the month of January were received and ordered filed.

New Details Regarding Death of Russia's 'Mad Monk' Are Revealed In Libel Suit Hearing in London

LONDON, March 1 (AP)—New details—piling horror on horror—regarding the death of the sinister monk Rasputin in the St. Petersburg Imperial Palace were recited by Prince Felix Youssoupoff today in an excited London court.

The descendant of high Russian nobility, appearing in a damage suit hearing, told how he was partly hypnotized by the mad monk, how he gave his victim poisoned cakes and wine, and then shot and beat him to death before a crucifix.

Prince Youssoupoff testified in his wife's $2,000,000 suit against a film company for allegedly libelling her in a film depicting Rasputin and the Russian Czarina. Passages from a book by the prince were read "to show the picture historically inaccurate."

The case for Princess Irena Youssoupoff was concluded this afternoon, and Sir William Jowitt, for the defense, told the jury it must be proved that the film referred to her.

Sir William asked the prince if, just before the slaying, he was not suffering from nervous strain, so that he hardly knew what he was doing.

"It is quite natural," replied the witness quietly. "I am not a professional murderer."

"I did not, however, entirely lose my head at the time of the killing. I sang songs to the monk for a half hour before giving him poisoned cakes and wine."

Then, he went on, he shot the monk and clubbed the bleeding form when a co-conspirator's final shot apparently had not finished the gruesome assassination.

Rasputin's last look, he said, was one of intense hatred. The monk frothed at the mouth and turned toward the prince, realizing he was poisoned. He fell back heavily on a rug and "roared like a wild beast."

Earlier, Youssoupoff testified, he lay on a couch while the mysterious monk stroked his chest and face, creating a powerful mesmeric influence.

Sir William elicited from the witness an account of several visits he made to Rasputin to cure an ailment.

"It is a fact, is it not," asked Sir William, "that his treatment did you some good?"

"No, it did not," replied the prince.

The witness declared he killed Rasputin because the monk planned to betray Russia and seize the throne.

After the slaying, when the prince succumbed to his overwrought condition, someone else threw the body in a hole in the ice covering the Neva river.
