Mrs. Smith Goes to Identify and Claim Body of Husband

Mrs. James Carl Smith, of Cleveland, Tenn., left for Williamstown, Ky., Friday morning to identify and claim the body of her husband, who was killed Wednesday night when he fell from the pilot beneath a Southern railroad train. The body was found, badly mangled, lying near the tracks by a northbound train early Thursday morning.

Mrs. Smith was not informed of her husband's death until Friday morning. Mrs. Smith, accompanied by Mrs. W. E. Dobbins, left Cincinnati on the Carolina Special Wednesday night. Their two husbands rode the blind baggage of the same train. During the ride Dobbins went into the engine tender and arrived in Lexington. Smith remained on the blind baggage and it is supposed that he slipped and fell during the ride.

SECOND BILL OF LITTLE THEATER IS PRESENTED

Enthusiastic Reception Tendered All Numbers

Originality and merit was blended beautifully in the program offered at the Little theater Friday night in the form of bill of the season. The program will be repeated tonight for students, and any others who wish to attend may do so. Individual tickets may be procured at the door.

The first play presented was "Herstory," written by Mrs. E. S. Good and presented by her and by Miss Mary Wood Brown and Miss Pauline Sherry. The play is written in one act and depicts the unusual talent of the writer. Mrs. Goode developed an interesting plot and interspersed it with descriptions of Sunny Italy done in poetry and song, every line of which was successfully put over by the cast.

In "Quits" Miss Josephine Simrall and Miss Frances Jewell divided honors in interpreting the leading parts assigned to a social leader and a settlement worker, respectively. The story, written by Mrs. Isabel Wolfe Hemenway, was read by Mrs. Isabel Wolfe and the minor parts were taken by Bobbie Lampert, Archie Dewees, Geraldine Willis, Katherine Shumstead, Marguerite McLaughlin, Dorothy Stimson, W. H. Maxwell, Sigerson Leland and Hannah Billman.

"The Host and His Money" is the title of the last number of the program, which was written by Miss Josephine Simrall. The dainty romance was written with great care since of style and was interpreted by Miss Katherine Connell and Reynaud Conrad with remarkable precision. The lighting effects were in charge of James Motley, who, with W. Williams, in addressing the scenic effects very materially assisted in the success of the production. "The Host and His Money" was the only play of the evening executed by a cast in which none of the members of the college club appeared.

After the program was completed last night the patrons, Mrs. Hemenway, Mrs. Goode and Miss Simrall, were given quite a reception and were congratulated most heartily on the beauty and skill in their compositions, while Bobbie Lampert, youngest daughter of Professor and Mrs. Carl Lampert, was recommended for her sweet beauty and talent. Young Archie Dewees in a juvenile role in "Quits" was a needful success in the work and was greatly enjoyed.

In an informal talk prior to the beginning of the program Miss Simrall, president of the Central Kentucky branch of the Southern Association of College Women, discussed the spirit of the Little Theater and the amateur players and plays. Community singing was led by Professor Mikesell between each play.
